The National Elections Commission warns against Political Parties and Independent hopefuls engaging in Pre-Election Campaign activities to stop, otherwise, the Commission will not hesitate to use its regulatory authority to punish violators in keeping with the Law.

The NEC says, this warning is in line with its New Election guidelines relating to political parties and independent Candidates.

The National Elections Commission says this warning is instituted as a result of political parties and independents hopefuls recklessly indulging in pre-election campaigning activities despite several warnings by the Commission.

Meanwhile, the NEC is further warning those aspirants who continue to use photo images on posters, fliers, billboards, T-shirts, etc to immediately pull down these materials with immediate effect or face the risk of being denied the opportunity to participate in the 2017 Presidential and Legislatives Elections.
